1. Purpose

This Reimbursement Policy establishes the requirements and controls for reimbursing eligible employees and authorized personnel for approved business expenses personally paid on behalf of TechNova Solutions Pvt. Ltd. (“TechNova” or “the Company”).

The policy complements the Expense Policy by defining how eligible expenses are documented, submitted, reviewed, approved, and paid.

2. Scope

This policy applies to employees and other personnel specifically authorized to incur reimbursable Company expenses. It covers expenses paid using personal funds where reimbursement is permitted under Company policy.

Expenses charged directly to a Company payment card remain subject to applicable expense-control requirements but are not normally submitted as personal reimbursement claims.

3. Reimbursement Principles

- Only legitimate business expenses are reimbursable.
- Expenses must be reasonable, necessary, and appropriately authorized.
- Claims must be complete and supported by acceptable evidence.
- Personal expenses are not reimbursable.
- Employees must not approve their own claims.
- Duplicate reimbursement is prohibited.
- Claims should be submitted promptly.
- Finance may request additional documentation before payment.

4. Responsibilities

Party	Responsibilities
Claimant	Incur eligible expenses, retain evidence, submit accurate claims, and disclose personal or reimbursed amounts.
Manager / Approver	Verify business purpose, reasonableness, supporting documents, budget, and policy compliance.

Party	Responsibilities
Finance	Validate claims, apply accounting controls, request clarification, process approved payments, and maintain records.
Budget Owner	Confirm appropriate use of the relevant budget or project allocation.
Authorized Executive	Review specified high-value claims and policy exceptions.

5. Eligible Reimbursement Categories

- Approved business travel
- Accommodation
- Business meals and permitted hospitality
- Local business transportation
- Approved mileage or business use of a personal vehicle
- Approved professional events and training
- Authorized business supplies
- Other expenses expressly approved by the relevant authority

6. Prior Authorization

Where prior approval is required by the Expense Policy, departmental controls, procurement requirements, or the applicable approval matrix, reimbursement is conditional on that approval.

A personal payment made without required authorization does not automatically create an obligation for the Company to reimburse the employee.

7. Claim Submission Deadline

Claims should normally be submitted within 15 calendar days after the end of the relevant expense period or the employee's return from business travel, unless Finance establishes a different deadline for a particular process.

Late submissions may be returned for explanation and may be delayed or denied where permitted by applicable requirements.

8. Required Claim Information

- Employee name or claimant identifier
- Expense date
- Supplier or merchant
- Amount and currency
- Expense category
- Business purpose
- Project, cost center, or client code where applicable
- Required approver
- Receipt or other supporting evidence

9. Receipts

A receipt, invoice, ticket, electronic confirmation, or other reliable evidence should be attached to each claim where available.

- Evidence must be legible.

- Amounts must correspond to the claim.
- Documents must not be falsified or materially altered.
- Where a receipt is unavailable, the claimant must provide the explanation and alternate evidence requested by Finance.

10. Lost Receipts

If a receipt is genuinely unavailable, the employee should provide a written explanation and available transaction evidence. Finance may approve, reject, or escalate the claim based on the circumstances and applicable controls.

Repeated lost receipts may result in additional review or restrictions on reimbursement privileges.

11. Business Purpose

The business purpose must be specific enough for an approver or Finance reviewer to understand why the expense was incurred.

- Customer meeting
- Approved business travel
- Project activity
- Conference attendance
- Candidate interview
- Team business event

12. Business Meals

Reasonable business meals may be reimbursed when there is a legitimate business purpose and appropriate approval.

For meals involving external parties, the claim should identify attendees or organizations where required, the business purpose, and the amount attributable to the business activity.

13. Employee Meals

Ordinary personal meals are not reimbursable merely because an employee is working during normal hours. Meals during approved business travel or qualifying business circumstances may be reimbursed subject to applicable limits and requirements.

14. Transportation

- Public transportation
- Reasonable taxi or app-based transportation
- Approved rail or air travel
- Parking and tolls for authorized business travel
- Approved mileage for business use of a personal vehicle

Transportation selected should be reasonable for the business need, safety, timing, and location.

15. Accommodation

Accommodation is reimbursable when required for approved business travel. The selected accommodation should be reasonably priced, safe, and appropriate for the business purpose.

- Standard room charges may be reimbursed.
- Personal upgrades are not normally reimbursable.
- Personal entertainment and unrelated charges are excluded.

- Additional nights require a business justification.

16. Air and Rail Travel

Travel class and booking requirements are governed by the Expense Policy and applicable approvals.

Optional upgrades paid personally are not reimbursable unless specifically authorized for a legitimate business reason.

17. Mileage

Where an employee is authorized to use a personal vehicle for Company business, reimbursement may be calculated using the Company's approved mileage methodology.

Normal commuting between home and the employee's regular workplace is not reimbursable.

18. Foreign-Currency Claims

Foreign expenses should be supported by the transaction record and, where required, the conversion basis. Finance may use the actual card or bank conversion rate or an approved accounting rate.

The claimant should not claim both the converted amount and a separate exchange-rate gain or adjustment.

19. Taxes and Fees

Reasonable mandatory taxes and transaction fees that form part of an eligible business expense may be reimbursed. Finance may require tax invoices or additional information for accounting or statutory purposes.

20. Tips and Gratuities

Reasonable business-related tips or gratuities may be reimbursed where customary and appropriate. Excessive discretionary amounts are not reimbursable.

21. Conference and Training Expenses

Approved registration, course, certification, and related business expenses may be reimbursed when they are relevant to the employee's responsibilities and have received required approval.

- Registration confirmation
- Invoice or payment evidence
- Business relevance
- Travel evidence where applicable

22. Software and Digital Services

Personal reimbursement for software, cloud services, AI tools, subscriptions, or online services requires prior authorization through the applicable technology, security, procurement, or departmental process.

Employees should not use personal subscriptions for Company work where doing so would create security, privacy, licensing, or data-protection concerns.

23. Office Supplies

Low-value business supplies may be reimbursed when authorized and when the procurement process does not require centralized purchasing.

Recurring or material purchases should normally be processed through Procurement.

24. Customer and Vendor Expenses

Claims involving customers, suppliers, partners, or other external parties must satisfy applicable business-expense, conflict-of-interest, and anti-bribery requirements.

25. Recruitment Expenses

Approved candidate travel, interview meals, and related recruitment expenses may be reimbursed when coordinated through the relevant hiring process.

26. Employee Events

Approved team activities or employee events may be reimbursed within an authorized budget. Personal entertainment and unapproved social activities are not reimbursable.

27. Personal Components

Where a transaction combines business and personal elements, only the eligible business portion may be reimbursed.

- Personal travel extension
- Personal companion costs
- Optional upgrades
- Personal shopping
- Non-business entertainment

28. Business Travel Combined With Personal Travel

An employee may combine approved business travel with personal travel only where permitted and approved. Any additional cost caused by the personal portion must be paid by the employee.

The Company may require evidence demonstrating the incremental business cost before reimbursement.

29. Cancellation Charges

Reasonable cancellation or change charges caused by business requirements may be reimbursed. Charges caused by avoidable personal changes may be excluded.

Employees should cancel unused reservations promptly when a trip or activity is no longer required.

30. Emergency Expenses

Reasonable emergency expenses incurred for employee safety, business continuity, or urgent business requirements may be submitted with an explanation even where advance approval was impractical.

The employee should notify the relevant manager or Finance contact as soon as reasonably possible.

31. Corporate Card Transactions

Corporate card transactions should not be submitted as personal reimbursement claims. If an employee has personally paid an eligible expense and the same expense was accidentally charged to a Company card, the duplicate must be reported and corrected.

32. Cash Advances

Where Finance authorizes a cash advance, the employee must reconcile the advance against actual eligible expenditure and return any unused amount within the prescribed timeframe.

An employee may not claim reimbursement for amounts already covered by a cash advance.

33. Duplicate Claims

- Do not submit the same receipt more than once.
- Do not claim an expense already paid through a Company card.
- Do not claim the same expense under multiple projects or cost centers.

- Report duplicate payments promptly.

34. Approval Workflow

A typical reimbursement workflow is:

- Employee incurs an eligible business expense.
- Employee prepares a complete claim.
- Required evidence is attached.
- Manager or designated approver reviews the claim.
- Finance performs applicable validation and accounting checks.
- Approved reimbursement is processed through the designated payment method.

35. Approval Independence

The claimant must not approve their own reimbursement. Where practical, an approver should be independent of the transaction and have sufficient authority for the amount and nature of the expense.

36. Approval Thresholds

Approval limits are governed by the Company's current Approval Matrix and applicable departmental controls.

Employees must not divide a transaction into smaller claims to avoid an approval threshold.

37. Cost Center and Project Coding

The claimant is responsible for providing accurate coding where the expense process requires a department, cost center, project, client, or other accounting reference.

Incorrect coding may delay payment and may require Finance to return the claim.

38. Finance Review

Finance may review claims for eligibility, mathematical accuracy, supporting evidence, duplicate transactions, unusual patterns, correct accounting treatment, tax requirements, and compliance with Company controls.

Finance may request clarification or supporting documentation before approving payment.

39. Returned Claims

A claim may be returned when required information is missing, an approval is absent, evidence is insufficient, the expense is personal, or the transaction does not meet policy requirements.

Employees may correct and resubmit a claim when the issue can be resolved.

40. Rejected Claims

Claims that are clearly ineligible or unsupported may be rejected. Rejection should identify the reason where practical.

Repeated submission of clearly prohibited expenses may be treated as a compliance matter.

41. Reimbursement Payment

Approved reimbursement is processed using the payment method maintained by the Company for the employee. Employees are responsible for keeping required payment or banking information current through authorized Company processes.

42. Payment Timing

Payment timing depends on claim completeness, approval, Finance processing cycles, banking arrangements, and applicable payroll or payment schedules. A claim should not be considered payable until required controls have been completed.

43. Incorrect Reimbursement

If the Company reimburses an employee incorrectly or in excess of the eligible amount, the employee must notify Finance promptly. The excess may be recovered or offset through an authorized process.

44. Fraud and Misrepresentation

- Submitting fabricated receipts
- Changing transaction amounts
- Claiming personal expenses as business expenses
- Misrepresenting attendees or business purpose
- Claiming expenses not actually incurred
- Knowingly submitting duplicate claims

Such conduct may result in reimbursement denial, recovery of funds, disciplinary action, and escalation to appropriate authorities.

45. Conflicts of Interest

Employees must disclose relevant conflicts where a reimbursed expense involves a supplier, customer, candidate, family member, or other party connected to a personal financial or other material interest.

46. Gifts and Hospitality

Reimbursement for gifts and hospitality must comply with Company ethical requirements, applicable law, and any anti-bribery restrictions. Cash or cash-equivalent gifts should not be claimed unless specifically permitted.

47. Privacy and Confidentiality

Expense claims may contain personal, financial, customer, supplier, or travel information. Claimants and reviewers must handle such information only for legitimate business purposes and protect it from unauthorized disclosure.

48. Record Retention

Reimbursement claims and supporting records must be retained according to applicable Company financial record-retention requirements.

Records associated with an open audit, investigation, dispute, or legal requirement must not be intentionally destroyed or altered.

49. Audit and Monitoring

Authorized Finance, audit, or control functions may conduct periodic reviews of reimbursement activity.

- Sample-based claim review
- Duplicate detection
- Threshold analysis
- Repeated exception analysis
- Unusual merchant or category review
- Review of missing documentation

50. Travel Advances and Reconciliation

Employees receiving advance funding must reconcile the advance against eligible actual expenses. Any remaining balance must be returned or otherwise accounted for according to Finance instructions.

51. Expense Reimbursement During Leave or Separation

Employees should submit outstanding eligible claims before planned separation where practical. After separation, claims may be processed through the Company's designated former-employee or settlement process, subject to required documentation and approval.

52. Manager Review Checklist

- Is the expense business-related?
- Was required prior approval obtained?
- Is the amount reasonable?
- Are supporting documents attached?
- Is the business purpose clear?
- Is the expense coded correctly?
- Is there any personal component?
- Is there any conflict or unusual circumstance?

53. Employee Submission Checklist

- Receipt or valid supporting evidence attached
- Correct expense date
- Correct amount and currency
- Clear business purpose
- Correct cost center/project
- Required approvals obtained
- Personal component excluded
- No duplicate submission

54. Exceptions

Exceptions may be granted only by an authorized authority. An exception should identify the expense, reason, amount, risk, and approving authority. An exception for one transaction does not automatically modify this policy.

55. Non-Compliance

Non-compliance may lead to delayed or denied reimbursement, recovery of improperly paid amounts, loss of reimbursement privileges, disciplinary action, or other appropriate measures.
