1. Purpose

The purpose of this Leave Policy is to establish a consistent framework for requesting, approving, recording, carrying forward, and administering employee leave at TechNova Solutions Pvt. Ltd. (“TechNova” or “the Company”).

The policy is designed to support employee wellbeing while ensuring that teams maintain appropriate staffing, customer commitments, operational continuity, and delivery responsibilities.

This policy should be read together with the Employee Handbook, applicable employment agreements, holiday calendars, and any legally applicable leave requirements.

2. Scope

This policy applies to eligible TechNova employees unless their employment agreement, role-specific arrangement, or applicable requirement provides otherwise.

Interns, trainees, contractors, consultants, and other non-employee personnel may be subject to separate contractual or program-specific arrangements.

3. Policy Principles

- Employees are encouraged to take entitled leave and maintain reasonable rest and wellbeing.
- Leave must be requested and recorded through the approved Company process.
- Managers should consider requests fairly and consistently while maintaining business continuity.
- Employees must not work while recorded as being on leave unless specifically authorized and the leave record is appropriately adjusted.
- Leave balances must be maintained accurately in the Company's designated HR system.
- Fraudulent or deliberately inaccurate leave claims may result in corrective or disciplinary action.

4. Leave Year

The Company's standard leave year runs from 1 January through 31 December. Leave balances are calculated and administered according to the employee's eligibility and applicable joining or separation dates.

Where an employee joins during a leave year, the applicable annual entitlement may be prorated according to Company rules and the employee's eligibility date.

5. Leave Categories

TechNova maintains the following principal leave categories for eligible employees. Specific statutory requirements, employee agreements, and approved Company programs may provide additional entitlements.

Leave Category	Standard Entitlement	Primary Purpose
Annual Leave	24 working days/year	Planned vacation, rest, personal commitments
Sick Leave	12 working days/year	Illness, medical recovery, or related needs
Personal Leave	6 working days/year	Urgent or personal matters
Parental Leave	As applicable	Birth, adoption, or qualifying parental responsibilities
Bereavement Leave	Up to 5 working days	Death of an immediate family member
Public Holidays	As published annually	Company-recognized public holidays
Unpaid Leave	Case-by-case	Approved absence when paid entitlement is unavailable or inappropriate

6. Annual Leave

Eligible full-time employees receive 24 working days of annual leave for a complete leave year. Part-time and other eligible employees receive leave according to their applicable employment terms and the Company's leave administration rules.

Annual leave is intended primarily for planned periods of rest, vacation, personal commitments, and other purposes for which an employee reasonably requires time away from work.

6.1 Planning and Notice

- Employees should submit planned annual leave requests as early as reasonably possible.
- For leave of one to two working days, employees should normally provide at least three working days' notice.
- For leave exceeding two working days, employees should normally provide at least seven calendar days' notice.
- Longer periods of leave should be discussed with the manager before booking travel or making other non-refundable commitments.
- Notice requirements may be relaxed for circumstances that could not reasonably have been anticipated.

6.2 Approval

Annual leave requires manager approval through the designated HR or leave-management system. Approval depends on employee eligibility, available balance, business requirements, team coverage, customer commitments, and previously approved absences.

Managers should not unreasonably delay decisions on properly submitted requests.

6.3 Carry Forward

Employees may carry forward up to 12 unused annual-leave days into the following leave year, unless a different limit is required by applicable law or expressly approved by the Company.

Carried-forward leave should normally be used during the following leave year. The HR system will maintain separate balances where technically supported.

6.4 Encashment

Unused annual leave is not ordinarily encashed during active employment unless an approved Company program or applicable requirement provides otherwise. Treatment at separation is governed by applicable requirements, employment terms, and the Exit and Separation Policy.

7. Sick Leave

Eligible employees receive 12 working days of sick leave per leave year for personal illness, injury, medical recovery, or related health needs.

Employees should notify their manager as soon as reasonably possible when they are unable to work because of illness.

Where an absence continues beyond the initial approved period, the employee should provide an updated expected return date and follow HR documentation requirements.

7.1 Medical Documentation

The Company may request reasonable supporting documentation for extended or repeated sick leave where permitted by applicable requirements and Company procedure. Sensitive medical information should be provided only through the designated HR channel.

7.2 Extended Illness

Where an employee requires an extended absence, HR may work with the employee and manager to determine an appropriate leave arrangement, documentation process, return-to-work plan, or other support.

8. Personal Leave

Eligible employees may use up to six working days of personal leave per leave year for urgent personal matters that do not reasonably fit another leave category.

Personal leave should generally be requested in advance where circumstances permit. In an emergency, the employee should notify the manager as soon as practicable.

9. Parental Leave

Employees may be eligible for parental leave in connection with childbirth, adoption, or other qualifying parental circumstances. The applicable duration and conditions depend on the employee's circumstances, employment terms, Company programs, and applicable requirements.

Employees should contact HR as early as reasonably possible to discuss planned parental leave and required documentation.

HR will communicate the applicable process, expected documentation, benefits implications, and return-to-work arrangements.

10. Bereavement Leave

An eligible employee may receive up to five working days of bereavement leave following the death of an immediate family member.

Immediate family generally includes a spouse or partner, parent, child, sibling, or other family relationship recognized under the applicable Company procedure.

Employees should notify their manager or HR as soon as reasonably practicable. Supporting documentation may be requested only where appropriate and permitted.

11. Public Holidays

TechNova publishes an annual holiday calendar for each applicable operating location. Public holidays do not normally reduce an employee's annual-leave balance.

Employees assigned to customer operations, support, shifts, or locations with different holiday calendars may follow an approved schedule communicated by their department.

12. Unpaid Leave

Unpaid leave may be considered when an employee has exhausted applicable paid leave or when circumstances justify an extended absence.

Approval is discretionary unless otherwise required by an applicable entitlement. Employees should submit a written request explaining the proposed dates, reason, and expected return date.

HR will determine the administrative and benefits implications of approved unpaid leave.

13. Leave Request Procedure

- Employee checks the available balance and applicable eligibility in the HR system.
- Employee submits the leave request with dates, leave category, and required supporting information.
- Manager reviews operational impact and approves, rejects, or requests clarification.
- HR or the system records the approved absence.
- Employee receives confirmation and ensures relevant work is planned or handed over.
- Any change to approved dates must be submitted through the same process.

14. Emergency Leave

When an emergency prevents advance submission, the employee or an appropriate representative should notify the manager or designated contact as soon as practicable.

The manager may record the absence provisionally and ask the employee to complete the formal request after the immediate emergency has passed.

15. Leave During Notice Period

Employees serving a notice period may request leave subject to normal approval requirements. Managers may consider knowledge transfer, project deadlines, staffing, and business continuity when evaluating requests.

Any special treatment of leave during the notice period must comply with the employee's employment terms and applicable requirements.

16. Leave and Performance

Legitimate use of approved leave should not by itself be treated as a negative performance factor. Employees remain responsible for meeting reasonable performance expectations, communicating availability, completing handovers, and complying with applicable procedures.

17. Manager Responsibilities

- Review requests promptly.
- Apply policy consistently across team members.
- Consider staffing, customer commitments, and operational continuity.
- Maintain confidentiality regarding employee circumstances.
- Escalate unusual, extended, or potentially sensitive cases to HR.

- Ensure leave records reflect actual approved absences.

18. Employee Responsibilities

- Submit accurate leave requests.
- Use the correct leave category.
- Provide notice whenever reasonably possible.
- Maintain communication during extended or unexpected absence as required.
- Complete required documentation.
- Ensure reasonable work handover before planned leave.
- Return to work on the approved date or notify the manager if circumstances change.

19. Overlapping Leave and Public Holidays

Where a public holiday occurs during a period of annual leave, the public holiday will ordinarily be treated according to the applicable holiday calendar rather than deducted from annual-leave balance.

Other leave categories may have different treatment under applicable requirements or Company procedures.

20. Leave Balance Corrections

Employees who identify an apparent error in their leave balance should contact HR with the relevant dates and supporting information.

HR may review system records, approval history, attendance records, and other appropriate documentation before correcting a balance.

21. Misuse of Leave

Examples of potential misuse include knowingly submitting false information, obtaining approval through material misrepresentation, recording absence under an incorrect category to obtain an improper benefit, or repeatedly failing to follow notification requirements without reasonable explanation.

Potential misuse may be reviewed under the Company's disciplinary process.

22. Confidentiality

Information concerning an employee's leave, particularly medical or family-related information, should be handled confidentially and shared only with individuals who have a legitimate business need to know.

23. Exceptions

Exceptions may be approved only by an authorized HR representative or other designated authority where permitted. Exceptions should be documented and should not be applied in a discriminatory or inconsistent manner.

Nothing in this policy is intended to remove an entitlement that is mandatory under applicable law.

24. Policy Administration

Human Resources owns this policy and is responsible for reviewing it at least annually or when a material organizational, operational, or regulatory change requires review.

The latest approved version in the official Company policy repository is the authoritative version.
