1. Purpose

This Recruitment & Hiring Policy establishes the standards and approval requirements for attracting, evaluating, selecting, and hiring employees at TechNova Solutions Pvt. Ltd. (“TechNova” or “the Company”).

The policy is designed to ensure that recruitment decisions are based on legitimate role requirements, candidate qualifications, demonstrated capability, organizational needs, and consistent evaluation practices.

The policy also establishes controls intended to protect candidate information, maintain appropriate approvals, support workforce planning, and reduce conflicts of interest and inconsistent hiring practices.

2. Scope

This policy applies to recruitment for regular full-time, part-time, fixed-term, internship, and trainee positions where TechNova's internal hiring process is used.

Contractor and consultant engagements may follow procurement or vendor-management processes in addition to applicable portions of this policy.

All employees participating in recruitment, including hiring managers, interviewers, HR personnel, and senior approvers, must follow the requirements relevant to their responsibilities.

3. Recruitment Principles

- Recruitment decisions should be based on job-related qualifications and business requirements.
- Candidates should receive clear and accurate information about the role and recruitment process.
- Interview and assessment criteria should be reasonably consistent for candidates applying to the same role.
- Candidate information must be handled confidentially and accessed only for legitimate recruitment purposes.
- Conflicts of interest must be disclosed.
- Required approvals must be obtained before an offer is issued.
- Recruitment records must be maintained according to Company retention requirements.
- Managers must not make informal commitments regarding compensation, title, start date, or employment conditions without appropriate authorization.

4. Workforce Requisition

A recruitment process normally begins with an approved workforce requisition.

4.1 Requisition Contents

- Position title
- Department and team
- Reporting manager
- Employment category
- Location or approved remote arrangement
- Reason for hiring
- Number of positions
- Required qualifications
- Preferred qualifications
- Core responsibilities
- Proposed compensation range or approved compensation framework
- Target hiring date
- Budget or cost-center information
- Required approval authorities

4.2 Approval

The hiring manager is responsible for preparing the requisition. HR validates the recruitment requirements and organizational consistency. Finance or another designated authority may be required to confirm budget availability. The applicable business approver must authorize the position before external sourcing begins.

5. New Position and Replacement Hiring

A new position normally requires confirmation that the role is part of the approved workforce plan or has received an appropriate exception approval.

A replacement position should identify the role being replaced and whether the responsibilities, level, location, or compensation framework have changed.

6. Job Description

Each approved role should have a current job description before candidate sourcing begins.

6.1 Required Job Description Elements

- Job title and level
- Department
- Reporting relationship
- Role summary
- Primary responsibilities
- Required technical or professional skills
- Required experience
- Education or certification requirements where genuinely relevant

- Expected working arrangement
- Key performance expectations
- Travel requirements where applicable
- Other material job conditions

Job descriptions must not contain requirements that are unrelated to legitimate job responsibilities or that unnecessarily restrict the candidate pool.

7. Recruitment Sources

HR may use multiple recruitment channels based on role requirements and approved recruitment strategy.

- Company careers page
- Employee referrals
- Professional networking platforms
- Recruitment agencies
- Campus recruitment
- Industry events
- Internal job postings
- Approved recruitment partners
- Direct candidate sourcing

External recruitment agencies must be approved through the Company's applicable vendor process before being engaged.

8. Internal Recruitment

TechNova may advertise eligible roles internally to support employee development and internal mobility.

Internal candidates must be evaluated against the requirements of the role. Current employment status, performance, notice requirements, manager coordination, and other applicable factors may be considered.

An employee should not be denied the opportunity to apply solely because they have expressed an interest in career development, provided they meet the applicable requirements.

9. Employee Referral Program

Employees may refer qualified candidates through the approved referral process.

Referrals must be submitted through the designated system or HR channel so that candidate records and referral eligibility can be maintained accurately.

Employees must not pressure a candidate to apply or misrepresent the Company's role, compensation, or employment conditions.

Referral incentives, where offered, are governed by the applicable referral program terms.

10. Candidate Sourcing

Recruiters and hiring teams should identify candidates using sources appropriate to the role.

Candidate communications should accurately describe the role, expected process, and material employment conditions known at the time.

Recruiters must not knowingly misrepresent the Company, role, compensation framework, location, or employment category to attract a candidate.

11. Candidate Screening

HR or an authorized recruiter may conduct an initial screening to determine whether a candidate reasonably meets the basic role requirements.

11.1 Screening Factors

- Relevant experience
- Technical or professional skills
- Required qualifications
- Communication and collaboration capability
- Availability and notice period
- Work authorization where applicable
- Location or working arrangement requirements
- Compensation expectations where appropriate
- Other legitimate job-related criteria

Screening criteria should be documented sufficiently to support consistent decision-making.

12. Candidate Application Information

Candidates may be asked to provide information necessary to evaluate their suitability for the role and administer the recruitment process.

Recruitment personnel should avoid collecting information that is unnecessary for the hiring decision or unrelated to legitimate employment requirements.

13. Interview Process

The interview process should be proportionate to the role and may include HR interviews, technical assessments, functional interviews, managerial interviews, leadership interviews, case studies, coding exercises, or other job-related assessments.

13.1 Interview Panel

The hiring manager and HR should identify appropriate interviewers before the interview process begins. Interviewers should understand the evaluation criteria and their specific area of assessment.

13.2 Interview Conduct

- Interviewers must treat candidates respectfully.
- Questions should be relevant to the position.
- Interviewers should avoid discriminatory or unnecessarily personal questions.
- Interview feedback should be based on observed evidence and job-related factors.
- Interviewers should not promise employment or compensation terms unless authorized.

14. Technical and Skills Assessments

Where an assessment is required, it should evaluate skills reasonably connected to the role.

Candidates should receive reasonable instructions regarding the expected task, time constraints, permitted resources, and submission requirements.

Assessment materials containing confidential Company information must not be provided to candidates unless specifically authorized.

15. Interview Evaluation

Interviewers should submit feedback through the designated recruitment system or approved evaluation process.

Evaluation Area	Example Considerations
Technical Capability	Knowledge, problem solving, implementation ability
Role Knowledge	Understanding relevant domain and responsibilities
Communication	Clarity, listening, explanation, collaboration
Problem Solving	Reasoning, trade-off analysis, structured thinking
Behavioral Competencies	Ownership, teamwork, adaptability, integrity
Role Fit	Ability to perform the actual responsibilities
Overall Recommendation	Strong Hire / Hire / Hold / No Hire

16. Selection Decision

The hiring manager is responsible for recommending the preferred candidate based on the complete evaluation record. HR reviews the selection for process compliance, required documentation, and consistency with the approved requisition.

Where candidates have comparable qualifications, the hiring team may consider additional job-related factors such as relevant experience, demonstrated skills, role requirements, or availability.

17. Conflicts of Interest

Employees involved in recruitment must disclose any personal, financial, reporting, or other relationship with a candidate that could create an actual or perceived conflict of interest.

Examples may include a close personal relationship, direct financial interest, or other circumstance that could reasonably affect impartiality.

HR may remove or replace an interviewer or decision-maker when appropriate.

18. Background Verification

Certain roles may require background verification before employment is finalized or before the employee begins sensitive responsibilities.

Verification may include employment history, education, professional credentials, identity, references, or other checks appropriate to the role and permitted by applicable requirements.

The type and extent of verification should be proportionate to the position and associated risks.

19. Reference Checks

Reference checks may be conducted for roles where prior employment performance or professional history is relevant.

Candidates should be informed of reference requirements where appropriate, and information obtained must be handled confidentially.

20. Compensation Approval

Compensation proposals must remain within the approved compensation framework unless an authorized exception is granted.

The hiring manager should not independently commit to compensation terms that have not received required approval.

HR is responsible for coordinating the approved compensation proposal and ensuring that the offer documentation reflects authorized terms.

21. Offer Approval

Before an offer is issued, required approvals should be completed.

- Approved requisition exists.
- Candidate selection is documented.
- Required interview feedback is available.
- Compensation has been approved.
- Required background or verification conditions are identified.
- Proposed start date has been confirmed.
- Required HR and business approvals are complete.

22. Offer Letter

The formal offer should accurately state the material employment terms applicable to the candidate.

Depending on the employment arrangement, the offer may include job title, employment category, compensation, benefits references, expected start date, location, working arrangement, notice requirements, conditions of employment, confidentiality provisions, and other applicable terms.

The formal employment agreement and approved Company documentation govern where a recruiting communication conflicts with an executed employment document.

23. Offer Negotiation

Candidates may discuss proposed compensation, start date, role scope, or other terms with authorized HR representatives.

Any material change to the approved offer must receive the appropriate approval before being communicated as a final Company commitment.

24. Offer Acceptance

Candidates should provide acceptance through the designated process and within the period specified in the offer.

HR should maintain the accepted offer and supporting records in the appropriate recruitment or employee system.

25. Offer Withdrawal

The Company may withdraw an offer when legitimate circumstances require it, including failure to satisfy stated conditions, material misrepresentation, inability to establish required eligibility, business changes, or other circumstances permitted by applicable requirements.

Offer withdrawal should be coordinated through HR and documented appropriately.

26. Candidate Rejection

Candidates who are not selected may be notified through the approved recruitment process.

Communications should be professional and should not disclose confidential interview feedback concerning other candidates.

Detailed feedback may be provided only where the Company has approved a process for doing so.

27. Recruitment Records

Recruitment records may include requisitions, job descriptions, applications, resumes, interview notes, assessments, evaluation forms, communications, approvals, offers, verification records, and acceptance documentation.

Access to recruitment records must be restricted according to role and legitimate business need.

28. Candidate Data Protection

Candidate information is confidential and must be stored and processed using approved systems.

- Do not share candidate resumes broadly within the Company.
- Do not send candidate information to unauthorized external parties.
- Use approved recruitment systems for storing candidate records.
- Protect candidate information from unauthorized access.
- Follow applicable retention and deletion requirements.

29. Recruitment Agency Management

External agencies must operate under an approved agreement or engagement process.

Agency submissions should identify the candidate, role, submission date, and relevant contractual terms.

Recruiters should avoid duplicate candidate submissions and resolve ownership disputes through documented records.

30. Campus Recruitment

TechNova may recruit interns, trainees, and entry-level employees through universities, colleges, technical institutions, career events, and approved campus partners.

Campus recruitment may use assessments, interviews, coding exercises, presentations, or other role-relevant evaluation methods.

Selection criteria should be communicated consistently to participating candidates.

31. Diversity and Fair Hiring

TechNova seeks to maintain a fair recruitment process and evaluate candidates based on legitimate role requirements.

Recruitment teams should avoid unnecessary barriers that are unrelated to job performance and should apply established criteria consistently.

32. Nepotism and Personal Relationships

Employment of relatives or individuals with close personal relationships to existing employees may be permitted where there is no inappropriate influence or reporting conflict.

An employee must disclose such a relationship when participating in the recruitment or management of the candidate.

HR may establish alternative reporting or decision-making arrangements where necessary.

33. Rehiring Former Employees

Former employees may be considered for rehire based on role requirements, previous employment record, performance history, separation circumstances, and applicable eligibility criteria.

A previous employee's prior service does not guarantee rehire.

34. Internal Transfers and Promotions

Recruitment for internal transfers and promotions should follow an appropriate assessment and approval process.

The receiving manager, current manager, and HR may coordinate transition timing where required.

35. Hiring for Confidential or Sensitive Roles

Roles involving privileged financial information, security administration, highly confidential intellectual property, executive information, or other sensitive data may require additional approvals and verification.

Access to sensitive systems should not be granted solely because a candidate has accepted an offer; access must follow the Company's access-control process.

36. Recruitment Metrics

HR may maintain recruitment metrics for workforce planning and process improvement.

- Time to fill
- Candidate pipeline volume
- Offer acceptance rate
- Source effectiveness
- Interview-to-offer ratio
- Recruitment cost
- New-hire retention indicators

Recruitment metrics should be used to improve hiring processes and should not replace appropriate individual candidate evaluation.
